

'All winners and place-getters at the Athens Olympics are being tested, and the blood and urine samples will be retained for two years — forming one of the strangest archives on the planet — in case new tests for new illegal substances are developed' The Australian, 20 August 2004